Final Project

       For my final project, I made a website where Los Angeles based users can find new coffee shops to try. The website is called 'Latte Love LA' and has three distinct pages. The homepage allows users to pick coffee shops by name, city, ratings, and price range. Users are directly to the Search Results page that allows them to see coffee shops based on their inputs. Users can click on the resulting coffee shops for extra details on the specific shop. Users can also add shops of their own and send emails to the editors for recommendations. The source of my data is from Github.I cleaned the data in python before uploading it to myphpAdmin. I incorporated pagination, PHP Email, and aggregate functions on my website.
